Services in the Churches of Washington

The whole world is diligently engaged in the search for happiness, and finds it a most elusive thing. It does not depend on WHERE WE ARE nor WHAT WE HAVE but on WHAT WE ARE. Happiness is not an end to be sought in itself. It is one of life's blessed by-p roducts. That person whose heart is right toward God and toward his fellowmen will some day discover that he is happy, even though he possess little and though his daily task be most monotonous.

SATURDAY'S SERMONETTE: New Hope.

That well-known layman, Mr. Fred B. Smith, is now touring the United States. He will impress people everywhere as he did in his Washington address last Sunday evening with the truth that Europe looks to America with new hope.

Having been present in prileaders, religious and political, throughout the continent, Mr. Smith has returned to his own country convinced that three first moves" are expected of America. This country must lead in the settlement of permanent peace and the reduction of armaments. This step is even now under way. Second, the nations of Europe look to the Christians of America to unite the Christians of all lands in universal condemnation of war-like activities; and third, America must furnish the moral incentive so necessary to any advance, whether religious or political. These moves do not sug-gest interference of church with State; they urge persistent ef-fort to help all men supplant material desires with Christian

REWARD.

An idle thought, a wrong act then suddenly we are harrassed with remorse. The remedy and preventative against reurrence is concentration upon all the good we know.

"The good that I would, I do not; the evil that I would not, that I do." No scriptural verse is more striking in its reference to our daily lives. We rebel, submit to known wrongs and insidious evils. The way out is upward; the reward for right conduct, our Master's as-surance: "To him that over-cometh will I give to eat of the fruit of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the Paradise of God." Can we ask for more?

The Episcopal Eye, Ear and

Eye hath not seen nor ear heard the things God hath prepared for them that love Him."

These words convey some message to every heart, yet they appeal more particularly to the hearts of those unfortunates vision, hearing or speech are impaired, thus depriving them of much that normal people enjoy. To alleviate the sufferings of much that normal people enjoy. To alleviate the sufferings of such persons, the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital was founded January 18, 1897.

The Rt. Rev. Alfred Harding is president of the board of governors. Mrs. David Meade Lea is president of the ladies' board, members of which are responsible for raising funds and supervision of welfare work connected with the institution. The purpose of the hospital is to maintain clinics, prescribe treatment, and if necessary, to perform operations for all eye, ear and throat disorders. The staff of doctors in attendance are specialists in diseases of these members and have for their use and for the comfort of patients equipment and facilities of the most modern design. The attendant nurses are medical school graduates or seniors who later receive specialized training at the institution. The distinguishing feature of this hospital, however, is the fact that its doors are always open to render the above services without charge, and without concern as to the patient's age, color, creed or financial assets. Separate wards are maintained for the accommodation of all visitants. tirely by public contributions and by proceeds from such events as the annual Thanksgiving Eve ball, the institution exacts not one penny from the thousands of people who each year accept of

In the twenty-five years of its existence, this hospital has grown to be the largest and most serviceable institution of its kind in Washington. More than 8,000 patients were treated in 1920. Eighty-two beds are maintained, fifty-four of which are free wards, the remaining private rooms. As an example of its charitable services, more than 2,000 male aviators were examined and treated for defective vision or hearing during the war period without cost to patients or government. More pathetic is the prompt and skillful service rendered at childbirth; many hundred infants might otherwise go through life blinded or with vision impaired. Free daily clinics are held from 12:30 till 2 p. m. except Sundays. Each individual's need, whether for advice, treatnent or operation, is carefully considered, and the need Increased facilities and extensions to the present main building to provide for a nurses' home are contemplated when sufficient fnuds are available.

This hospital, largest of its kind south of New York City, has performed most commendable service in the District. Its staff and attendant nurses manifest a happy, cheerful spirit and steady devotion to duty. There is an atmosphere of good will about the place; one is convinced that each person there has earned the comment: "For thou hast been a strength to the needy in his distress."
